EMERGENCY TARIFF
BILL A SUCCESS

For months the administration has been endeavoring to find some way to meet the emergency of the emergency tariff enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in May 1921. The bill was submitted to the Senate and House of Representatives in May 1921, and it did not prevent a slight increase in the retail price of foodstuffs throughout the country.

GOVERNMENT ON A PAYING BASIS

The substantial benefits derived from the conference for the regulation of armaments can best be gauged by the following report of the government which shows that the United States spent last year a paying basis, with income exceeding expenses by three hundred million dollars in a single year. The surplus also was reduced last year by more than a billion dollars.

First of all attention is directed to the reduction of armaments. The purpose of the conference which was held last year at Washington was to end the armament of the crushing power of tanks to maintain armament bases to annihilate other nations. It was passed by Congress on June 10, 1921, and it has been ratified by the Senate.

Democrats, allies of the Senate, have almost all their losses of its effectiveness up to the time that it became a law in May, 1921, prices of grain and livestock have been kept up in the United States. In viewing this fact and using it as a basis for the failure of the suggestion, such democratic speakers, such as Senator Hart, such as Nebraska have done, and of course, a very low impression by the old fashioned method of saying nothing in truth.

Had the democratic leaders of the Senate been more realistic they would have given the ratification of prices of grain and livestock not only in this country since the tariff became a law but in Canada and in other primary markets of the world. They did not do this. The reason they did not do so is evident from an inspection of the market quotations in Winnipeg, Toronto, Liverpool, Buenos Aires and other primary markets for grain and livestock.

The market quotations the world over for grain and livestock since May 1921 show that prices for all agricultural products have declined in every market. The significant thing is that prices for farm products and stock in the United States have declined for less than the prices for similar products in any other portion of the world where there is a market for grain and livestock.

Bent on their effort to show that the emergency tariff has not benefitted farm prices, some democratic publicity mediums and some democratic members of congress have endeavored to exonerate themselves by charging that inasmuch as the tariff did increase farm prices it increased the cost of living to the city consumer of farm products. Unfortunately for the success of the democratic party and the truth and veracity of its arguments, this statement is as false as the charge that the tariff has not benefitted the farmer.

A report issued by the United States department of labor, June, 1922, gives the average retail prices in the United States as of April 15, 1921 and March 15, 1922. This table shows that notwithstanding the emergency tariff benefitted the grower of livestock the price of steak on March 15, 1922, was 9 per cent less than it was April 15, 1921, which was a month before the emergency tariff went into effect and which was at a time when under the Underwood free trade law both livestock and fresh beef were being imported into this country free of duty.

Notwithstanding the protective emergency tariff raised the price of butter to the American producer, the retail price of butter, according to the labor department, dropped 19 per cent. Notwithstanding the emergency tariff benefitted the grain grower, the labor department's report shows a decrease in the price of humbler though it may be, than a bread of 16 per cent, in the palation dwelling wherein have price of flour 10 per cent, in money and infidelity and unhappy price of wheat cereal food 13 per cent prevail.

REPUBLICANS ASSISTED WOMEN IN INDUSTRY

The record of the republican party in enacting legislation to protect women workers in industry has been one of the bright spots in recent political history. Few voters realize how much has been accomplished along such lines in the republican states of the north, as well as how completely protective legislation for women has been neglected in the states of the democratic solid south. As a summary follows the contrast.

Legislation limiting the working hours of women in industry has preceded the program. A survey of the states which have passed laws establishing the 34 hour week or less for women show 24 states having such legislation. Of these 20 are republican, four are democratic.

An intrinsic part of the woman legislation program has been the effort to secure the appointment of women to administer those state laws. In 17 states this object has been accomplished and women hold executive positions in the welfare administration. Fifteen of these states are republican, two are democratic.

To give federal support to the welfare of working women the women's bureau was created in the department of labor. Here again the records show that the republican party took the initiative. The law establishing the women's bureau was enacted on June 20, 1920. It was introduced in the house by Representative Campbell of Kansas, a republican. It was introduced in the senate by Senator Kenyon of Iowa, a republican. It was passed by a long press, republican in both houses.

Each year work is being done to buy Thoracic Journals and Thor Washing Machines in Tonopah Tire and Electric company.
